THE STORY

It is evening of the day of a great bull fight. The cafe life is just beginning to become gay. The gitanas are mingling among the men of the concert hall, and the flower girls are plying their trade. Lalandia enters in full regalia and is persuaded to recount his afternoon's triumphs in the Plaza de Toros. Then the Cuadro Flamenco starts the night's entertainment of singing and dancing. La Macarena comes on for her number. At the end Lalandia, who has been her ardent suitor, demands an answer. She tells him that in return for the most beautiful shawl in Seville she will marry him. He goes to the shawl merchant next door and returns with a bundle. He offers them one by one—the fifth and last wins her. The entire assemblage celebrate their betrothal in typical gypsy manner.
